Colfiorito Farm - is situated a few kilometres from Rome, in the Municipality of Castel Madama, at the exact place where a Roman villa stood two thousand years ago. The locality was in fact well known to the ancient Romans, who have left numerous traces here such as the Claudian aqueduct and the villa of the poet Horace. It extends for more than thirty hectares following the slope the hill that is covered by vines and by 5,000 olive trees whose twisted forms show the passage of time. The ancient oil-mill, now only of historical value, still retains its old grindstone and other reminders of times past.
